For the P. C. Advertiser.
Musings of an Exile.
Now in this solemn midnight time,
My thoughts revert to days of yore,
Ere I forsook my native clime,
The dreary world to wander o'er.
Oh, then the brightest hopes were mine,
In that fair morning of my youth;
The sun should always clearly shine
Along the broad highway of truth.
And well do I remember me,
Through the long dreary lapse of years,
That day I left my home for me,
My mother's kiss—my mother's tears!
A few short months and I again,
(Such was the ready promise made)
Returned to her from off the main—
She should forget I ever had strayed!
Thirteen long years have passed since I
Last saw my mother's kindly face,
But still fond memory's constant eye
Can all those well-loved features trace.
Ah, bitter, unavailing tears!
Ah, and regrets, long years too late!
The surety of unwelcome fears,
The gloom of unrelenting fate!
For on my soul, unwillingly,
I feel the sad conviction rest,
That I, alas, no more shall see
My native land—"land of the West."
But still, upon this foreign shore,
Number the slowly rolling years,
Exiled from home—oh, nevermore,
To know the hope that others cherish.
Honolulu, Nov., 1856. LAURENS.

VARIETY.

The man who feels himself ignorant, should at least be modest.
Learning is the temperance of youth, the comfort of old age, and the only sure guide to honor and preferment.
Cigar ashes will be found an invaluable remedy for the bite of the mosquito.
Whatever your miseries may be, there are others more miserable than yourself.
Reason is the test of ridicule—not ridicule the test of truth.
An old lady in Greenbush is so careful of her property that she won't allow her geese to swim without having corks on.
Curiosities.—A ripple from the fountain of health; pieces from a broken promise; gravel from the road to ruin; a handle from a blade of grass; counterfeit mosquito bite.
The bayonet derives its name from the place where it was invented, Bayonne, in France, and was first used in battle as a weapon by the French, in the year 1603, proving a novel and efficient arm.
It is a good thing to laugh, at any rate, says Dryden; and if a straw can tickle a man, it is an instrument of happiness.
Bowling is an English game, and was common as early as the thirteenth century, especially among the higher ranks. Charles I. played at it, and it formed a daily occupation for leisure hours with Charles II.
A gentleman once said he should like to set a boat full of ladies adrift on the ocean to see what course they would steer. A lady in the room replied: "That's easily told—they would steer to the Isle of Man, to be sure!"
Lord Braxfield (a Scotch Judge) once said to an eloquent culprit at the bar: "Ye're a vera clever chiel, man, but I'm thinkin ye wad be name the waur o' a hanging."
"Excuse me, madam, I would like to ask why you look at me so very savagely?"
"Oh! I beg pardon, sir! I took you for my husband."
In walking in the city, always turn your toes out, and your thoughts inward. The former will keep you from falling into cellars, and the latter from falling into iniquity.
JULIUS CESAR HANNIBAL'S LECTURES.—DE WHALE.
I shall, on this great occasion, speak to you 'bout de beastes and monstrosities oh de deep; and as I allays take de biggest end ob de joke first, I shall lecture dis evening on de big codfish knone 'mong de saylers as de whale.
De whale, my frens, am werry seldom found in any other places dan de Mediterranean an' de Specific Oshuns. De whale am 'mong de fishes what an elenfant am 'mong de beastes—de biggest loafer ob dem all. A fisherman named Jonah swallowed one once; but it oberloaded his stomach to dat degree dat in tree days he leff him up agin. It was too much for him.
De whale am de big fish—de codfish aristocracy ob de sea, de same as de big bugs am de codfish aristocracy ob de land; but de former had got de 'vantage ob de latter, kaze notwithstandin' de whale dewours a good deal, he produces sumfin', but de land codfish aristocracy dewours everything an' produces nuffin.
PATIENCE WITH CHILDREN.—One of the requisites for the successful training of children, at home or in the school-room, is "Patience." Every teacher, whether the mother or a hireling, will find her labors made easy by the constant exercise of this cardinal virtue. If they "let patience have its perfect work" in their own hearts, it will be visible in all their conduct, and exert a salutary influence upon the minds of the young, in whose future well-being they feel a deep interest.
There may be hours when, perplexed with care and worn out with undue labor, the mother may feel the risings of impatience in her heart; but nip it in the bud, before the fruits become visible in acts of which she may afterwards bitterly repent. Let no unkind word or hasty blow be given in anger, lest the remembrance of it should prove a poisoned arrow to their bleeding hearts, when those loving eyes are closed in death, and the head which nestles on her bosom is pillowed in the grave. Children are won by kind words; but cross looks and harsh tones deter them from seeking our sympathy, or giving us their confidence. The mother or teacher should regard the sports of childhood as a blessing, join in their innocent amusements, and draw from thence some useful lesson for their future consideration. They should learn to look up to her as a friend in whom they could confide, who will bear patiently with their childish follies, and in kindness seek to improve whatever may be amiss in their manners or morals.
But should they turn a deaf ear to her teachings, and scorn her instructions, seeming inclined to follow the evil promptings of a sinful and perverse heart, she has then need of a double portion of patience to support her in this great trial, and enable her at last to overcome evil with good, and bring them to the force of precept and example, to walk in wisdom's pleasant ways. Be kind, be firm and patient, and hope on till the desired result is obtained.
